Hello! My name is Kim Whitehead and I am a graphic design student in New York

I have always enjoyed being an artist, which lead me to earn a bachelors degree in Art Studio after high school. My career path after graduation however, took me in a different direction, where I gained experience in customer service in the financial industry. I never lost my passion for art and decided I needed to get back to doing what I love, so I returned to school to study Graphic Design.

My studies and interests span a variety of areas including drawing, painting, two-dimensional and three dimensional design, printmaking, silk screening, artist books, photography, computer graphics, and web design.
